

ENROLLMENT NOW OPEN for the 2017 FISH FRIENDLY FARMING CERTIFICATION PROGRAM for Sonoma County

Contact the California Land Stewardship Institute:

The Fish Friendly Farming Program is enrolling new sites in Sonoma County. Parcels from the ridgetop to the river are eligible; you don't need to have a creek on your site. Over 31,000 acres are already enrolled in Sonoma County. The FFF program will be approved as a compliance program under the proposed Water Quality Permit. The California Land Stewardship Institute (CLSI), a nonprofit organization, directs the program. CLSI assists landowners to implement projects by applying for grants and permits. Once we receive your signup form we will create a set of maps for your site. Then in Spring FFF staff will work with you to complete a site assessment and complete your farm plan. You are not expected to complete your own farm plan. Once the farm plan is complete, your site is ready for certification. Plans prepared by or with government agencies (RCD, Ag Commissioner) are already public and available through request under the Ca. State Public Records Act. The FFF program was designed to keep farm plans private and is run by a private non-profit organization that is not subject to the Public Records Act.
